d With a partner, write two conditional story chains, one with second conditionals, and one with third conditionals.
1 If I had one year off work, I'd go to South Africa.
If I went to South Africa, I'd probably go on a safari...
If I went on a safari, I'd see a lion.
If I saw a lion, I'd be really scary.
If I was really scary, I'd cry by my life.
If I cried by my life, people would laugh at me.

2 If I hadn't been feeling so terrible, I would have called to the police.
if I had called to the police, they would have asked me what's happening.
if they had asked me what's happening, I would have told my story.
if I had told my story, I would was a joker.
If I had been a joker, I would worked in a show.

6 WRITING
p.190 Writing. A blog post.----------
Write a post about how to keep safe in different situations.

How to keep children safe in your home? You probably think that your home is a very safe place. But this may not be true if you have children coming to stay. Here are some tips to prent accidents. / Frist, look at the bedroom where the children are going to sleep. Make sure the beds are not under a window, in case a child tries to climb out. If a very small child is going to sleep in the bed, you could put some pillows on the floor next to the bed, in case the child falls out. / The next place to check is the bathroom. Many people put medicines in a drawer or on a shelf above the washbasin. But this can be dangerous, as children may find them and think they are sweets. You should keep them in a locked cupboard. / Finally, have a look at the kitchen, which is the most dangerous room in the house for children. Knives should be kept in drawers which children can't reach, and make sure that all cleaning liquids are in high or locked cupboards. / If you follow this simple advice, children who come to stay are likely to be much safer in your home.

a Look at the tree pictures. What do you think the parents should and shouldn't have done? Read the advice from a health and safety blog and check.
In the first picture: the parents should have keep the different knives in a other places when the kids couldn't pick up these objects.
In the second picture: they should lock the windows with keys.
In the third picture: the different medicines should be kept in a safe place, out of reach of children.

b This blog post was originally written in five short sections. Mark / where each new section should begin.

c You are going to write a health and safety blog post. With a partner, choose one of the titles below.
- How to keep safe if you go walking in the mountains.
- How to keep safe on a day at the beach.
- How to keep safe on a long drive.

d Plan the content.
1 Think of at least three useful tips.
2 Think of a good introductory sentence (or sentences)

e Write 140-190 words, organized in paragraphs. Use expressions from Useful language below, and write in a neutral or informal style.

Tip: Useful language: giving advice. Don't forget to... / Remember to... Make sure you... You should... Never... Reasons: ... in case... ... so (that)... ... because it might...

f Check your blog post for mistakes (grammar, punctuation, and spelling).

5B Wish you were you ‘Don’t wish it were easier; wish you were better.’

1 GRAMMAR wish for the present / future

a Look at some posts on a Pinterest board. Do you ever wish any of these things? Which ones?

- I wish you knew how much I really love you.
- I wish I didn’t have to go to work today.
- I wish I could fly. Or speak Chinese. Both I think are equally impossible.
- I wish my boyfriend didn’t live so far away.
- I wish my friends’ houses were connected to mine by secret tunnels.
- I wish I could eat as much as I liked without putting on weight.
- I wish I could text my dog when I wasn’t at home with her. Tell her I miss her. See what she’s doing. Ask her to take a selfie for me.

b Now look at a WhatsApp group where friends have shared things that annoy them. Tick (v) the things that annoy you, too.

So annoying! - I’m just back from the cinema - couldn’t enjoy the film. I wish they would ban people from eating in the cinema. Some people just can’t last for two hours without eating or drinking something. Grr. v	¡Tan molesto! - acabo de volver del cine - no pude disfrutar de la película. Desearía que echasen a la gente que come en el cine. Algunas personas no pueden estar dos horas sin comer ni beber.
Tony: I wish football commentators would stop shouting ‘Goooooal’ in that ridiculous way. If we’re watching, we can see that it’s a goal, and if we’re not watching, it’s because we don’t care.	Tony: Desearía que los comentaristas de futbol parasen de gritar ‘Gool’ de esa manera tan ridícula. Si estamos viendo el partido, podemos ver que es gol, y si no lo estamos viendo, es porque no nos interesa.
Sure: I wish people wouldn’t put their bags on seats to try and stop people sitting next to them. v	Sure: Desearía que la gente no pusiera sus bolsas en los asientos impidiendo que la gente se siente a su lado.
Georgia: I wish my boyfriend wouldn’t fall asleep every time I want to talk to him.	Georgia: Desaría que mi novio no se durmiera todo el tiempo cuando quiero hablar con él.
Ronnie: I wish my son would occasionally remember to fill up with petrol when he borrows my car.	Ronnie: Desearía que mi hijo recordase alguna vez rellenar el deposito de gasolina cuando coge prestado mi coche.
Josie: I wish people in call centres wouldn’t use my first name as if we were old friends.	Josie: Desearía que la gente de los callcenters no usasen mi primer nombre como si fueramos viejos amigos.
Harry: I wish my family would take their tissues out of their pockets before they put their clothes in the washing machine.	Harry: Desearía que mi familia cogiera sus tijeras de sus bolsillos antes de poner sus pantalones en la lavadora.
Ella: I wish people wouldn’t ask me ‘What are you doing?’ when it’s completely obvious what I’m doing. v	Ella: Desearía que la gente no me preguntase: ‘¿Qué tal estas? cuando es completamente obvio que no lo estoy.
Jon: I wish people wouldn’t leave supermarket trolleys in the car park, just because they can’t be bothered to take them back. v	Jon: Desearía que la gente no dejara el carrito de la compra en el parking, solamente porque no les viene bien devolverlos.

c Compare the things you’ve ticked with a partner. Which are your top three, and why? I agree with Sure, because they put their bags, and they make me ask: ‘is this sit free?’

Tip: Expressing annoyance - It really annoys me when... - It’s so annoying when... - it drives me mad when...	... people eat crisps in the cinema

d Compare the Pinterest posts in a and the messages in b. Then complete the rules with would / wouldn’t + infinitive or past simple.

1 We use wish + person + past simple to talk about things you would like to be different in the present / future (but which are impossible or unlikely)

2 We use wish + person + would / wouldn’t + infinitive to talk about things we want to happen or stop happening because they annoy us.

5B wish for present / future----------

Wish for present / future
5.17 wish + past simple

I wish I was ten years younger!
I wish I could understand what they're saying.
I wish we didn't live so far from my parents.

- We use wish + person / things + past simple to talk about things we would like to be different in the present / future (but which are impossible or unlikely)
- After wish, you can use was or where with I, he, she, and it, e.g. I wish I was / were taller.

5.18 wish + would / wouldn't

I wish the bus would come. I'm freezing.
I wish you'd spend a bit more time with the children.
I wish you wouldn't leave your shoes there. I always fall over them.
I wish cyclists wouldn't cycle on the pavement!

- We use wish + person / things + would / wouldn't to talk about things we want to happen, or stop happening, because they annoy us.
- You can't use wish + would for a wish about yourself, i.e. NOT ~~I wish I would..., I wish we would...~~

Wish for past regrets
5.21 wish + past perfect

I wish I'd worked harder at school.
I wish I hadn't spoken to him like that!
I wish she'd told me the truth about her feelings.

- We use wish + past perfect to talk about things that happened or didn't happen in the past and wish we now regret.

Tip: if only...
If only is sometimes used instead of I wish in certain situations, to express deep regret, e.g. If only I had worked harder at school (I wouldn't have such a boring job now) a Write sentences with I wish + past simple for 1-5, and I wish... would/wouldn't for 6-10.

0 I'd like to be taller.	I wish I was taller.
It annoys me that you don't put away your clothes.	I wish you'd put away your clothes!
- I'd like these things to be different:
1 I'd like to be fitter	I wish I was fitter.
2 I'd like my sister not to share a room with me.	I wish my sister didn't share a room with me.
3 I'd like to be able to dance.	I wish I was able to dance.
4 I'd like my grandmother not to be dead.	I wish my grandmother wasn't dead.
5 I'd like to live in a country with a better climate.	I wish I lived in a country with a better climate.
- It annoys me that...
6 shop assistants aren't more polite.	I wish shop assistants would be more polite.
7 you turn the heating up all the time.	I wish you wouldn't turn the heating up all the time.
8 my brother doesn't tidy our room.	I wish my brother would tidy our room.
9 the neighbour's dog barks at night.	I wish the neighbour's dog wouldn't barks at night.
10 it doesn't stop raining.	I wish it would stop raining.

b Rewrite the sentence beginning with I wish + past perfect.

0 I regret having written that email.	I wish I hadn't written that emal.
1 I regret not seeing Prince live.	I wish I had seen Prince live.
2 He regrets not learning to cook at school.	He wishes he had learnt to cook at school.
3 Do you regret buying a second-hand car?	Do you wish you hadn't bought a second-hand car?
4 Jenny regrets marrying her first husband.	Jenny wishes she hadn't married her first husband.
5 My parents regret moving to the country.	My parents wish they hadn't moved to the country.
6 Does Tom regret not studying law?	Does Tom wish he had studied law?
7 I regret having my hair cut so short.	I wish I hadn't had my hair cut so short.
8 They regret not going to the wedding.	They wish they had gone to the wedding.

5B present perfect continuous----------

Revise the basics

I have You have He/She/It has We have They have	I've You've He/She/It's We've They've	I haven't You haven't He/She/It hasn't We haven't They haven´t	been sleeping well recently.
Have you been sleeping well recently?	Yes, I have / No, I haven't.

Has he been sleeping well recently?	Yes, he has / No, he hasn't

1 A What have you been doing lately? B I've been studying for my exams.
She's been going for a walk every morning this week.
John's been working very late recently.

2 A You look tired. B I've been working in the garden.
A You're covered in paint B Yes, I've been decorating the kitchen all day.

3 How long have you been looking for a new job?
We've been living here since last year.
It's been raining all day.

1 We use the present perfect continuous with action verbs for repeated actions that started in the past and have continues till now. We often use time expressions like recently / lately.
- With non-action verbs we use the present perfect simple, e.g. I've known then for 10 years. NOT ~~I've been knowing them for 10 years~~.

2 We use the present perfect continuous for conitnuous actions which have visible present results.
3 We use the present perfect continuous to ask or talk about situations which started in the past and are still happening now. We often use for / since or time expressions like all day / all morning / all week. We don't use the present continuous or the present simple, e.g. I've been wating since 10 o'clock. NOT ~~I'm wainting since 10 o'clock~~. NOT ~~I wait since 10 o'clock~~.

- If you say when something happened, use the past simple, not hte present perfect continuous, e.g. I've been watching a lot of TV lately, I saw a great programme last night. NOT ~~I've been seeing a great programme last night~~.

Tip: Work and live
These verbs can usually be used in either the present perfect simple or the present perfect continuous with no difference in meaning, e.g. I've been living here for three months. OR I've lived here for three months.

a Match the querstions and answers, and complete the answers with the present perfect continuous.

f Write two more things that annoy you and that you would like people to change, and two things that you would like to be different about yourself or your life. Use I wish + would / wouldn't and I wish + past simple.
I wish people wouldn't eat pop-corns in the cinema.
I wish people wouldn't speak so loud in public places.

I wish I knew a lot of people.
I wish I traveled all over the world.

g In pairs or small groups, compare what you're written. Did anyone come up with the same things?

2 VOCABULARY & SPEAKING expressing feelings with verbs or -ed / -ing adjectives.

Tip: Ways of talking about how we feel. We can talk about how we feel in three different ways: 1 By using a verb (e.g. annoy): People who eat in the cinema really annoy me. 2 By using an -ing adjective (e.g. annoying): People who eat in the cinema are really annoying. 3 By useing an -ed adjective. (e.g. annoyed): I get really annoyed when people eat in the cinema.

a Complete the sentences with the correct form of the word in bold.
1 It really infuriate me when people drive close behing me. (infuriate)
2. I get very frustrated when something goes wrong with my internet connection and I don't know how to fix it. (frustrate)
3 It's so embarrasing when I can't remember someone's name, but they can remember mine. (embarrass)
4 I used to love shopping in the sales, but now I find it exhausting. After an hour, I just want to go home. (exhaust)
5 I'm often disappointed with my birthday presents. My expectations are obviously too high! (dissapoint)
6 It amaze me that some people still don't do their banking online. (amaze)
7 I find speaking in public absolutely terrified. I hate doing it. (terrify)
8 I've often been inspiried by reading about how some successful people have overcome difficulties. (inspire)
9 I never find instructions for electronic devices helpful - in fact, usually they just confuse me. (confuse)
10 When I travel, I'm always thrilling if I manage to communicate something in a foreign language. (thrill)

b 5.19 Listen and check. Then with a partner, say if the sentences are true for you or not. Give examples or reasons.

Tip: Feelings adjectives that have an -ed form but not an -ing form. A few -ed adjectives describing feelings don't have an -ing form, e.g. impressed - impressive NOT ~~impressing~~.

c Complete the sentences below with a form of the adjective in bold.
1 We are extremely impressed by your CV. Your CV is extremely impressive.
2 I get very stressed at work. My job is very stressful.
3 I was really scared during the film. The ending was especially scary.
4 I was delighted to meet Jane. She really is a delightful person.
5 I was really offended by what you said. What you said was really offensive.

d In pairs. cvhoose three squares and think about what you are going to say. Then talk to a partner.
- an embarrasing mistake you once made.
- something that makes you fell depressed.
- a film or a book that you found really disappointing.
- something that really annoys you when you're shopping.
- something that you find frustrating about learning English.
- something that really stresses you in your daily life.
- someone who inspires you.
- some physical activity that you did that left you absolutely exhausted.

I'm going to tell you about an embarrassing mistake I once made. I was emailing a colleague...

3 READING & SPEAKING
a You are going to read an article about regrets. Which three areas of life do you think people tend to have the most regrets about? Choose from the list below.
career, education, family, health, love, money, travel

b Read the article once and check. How did the writer change someone's life?

Regrets Recently, I helped my son move into his first-year room at university in Chicago and we discussed his hopes and plans for the next three years. That evening, I found myself thinking about how to help him make decisions he would never regret. I went to Twitter and typed, 'What is your biggest regret?' The response was huge and devastatingly honest. I had asked a question that, surprisingly, a lot of people really wanted to answer. I loved the light-hearted responses..	Arrepentimientos Recientemente, ayude a mi hijo a mudarse en su primer año de universidad en Chicago, y hablamos sobre sus esperanzas y planes para los próximos tres años. Esa tarde, me encontré pregundandome como ayudarle para que tomase decisiones que no le hiciera arrepentirse. Fuí a Twitter y escribí, '¿Cuál es tu mayor arrepentimiento?' La respuesta fue grande y devastadoramente honesta. Había hecho esa pregunta, sorprendentemente, mucha gente quería responder. Me encantó las respuestas desenfadadas...

‘Not flying on Concorde to new York with Lionel Richie. He wanted to take me for dinner. I was working.’ #idiot	‘No volar en Concorde de New York con Lionel Richie. Quería llevarme para cenar. Estaba trabajando.’
But very few of them were like that. What emerged is that real regrets are not about bad things happening to you. They are about bad choices - a deep sorrow, or anger at yourself for something you did, or something you failed to do.	Pero muy pocos de ellos fueron como esto. Lo que surgió es que los verdaderos remordimientos no son cosas malas que te ocurren. Son sobre malas decisiones - una profunda pena, o enfadarse con uno mismo por algo que haces, o algo que fracasaste en hacerlo.
Most of the replies divided into different categories. Education was high up the list - there were many more regrets to do with school and college than I had expected.	La mayoría de las respuestas se dividieron en categorias diferentes. La educación estaba al principio de la lista - había muchas más arrepentimientos con el colegio y la universidad de los que esperaba.
‘Never going to university. Left me disadvantaged all my life. Never lived up to my potential.’ 1 D - ‘My regret: listening to teachers who said I was stupid because I can’t spell. After two degrees was told I’m dyslexic. Am currently on fourth degree.’ 2 E - ‘Not getting a better education and working full-time from the age of 16’	‘Nunca fuí a la universidad. Me dejo en desventaja toda mi vida, nunca alcanzé mi potencial.’ ‘Mi arrepentimiento: escuchar a los profesores decir que era estudpida porque no podía escribir bien. Después de dos títulos me diagnosticaron dislexia. Actualmente estoy en mi cuarta carrera.’ ‘No conseguir una mejor educación y trabajar desde los 16’
Career- choice regrets made me realize a pattern was developing: regret seems most often to be about fear. Fear of doing the wrong thing, which then leads to an unfulfilled life.	La elección de trabajo me hizo darme cuenta de un patron se estaba desarrollando: los arrepentimientos tienen que ver, la mayoría de las veces, sobre el miedo. Miedo a hacer las cosas mal, lo que conduce a una vida insatisfecha.
‘Not following my dream to work in radio.’ 3 B - Listening to my dad when he said my voice was too weak to be a singer 4 F - ‘Not taking the job in Paris’	‘No seguir mi sueño de trabajar en la radio.’ ‘Teniendo miedo todo el tiempo. Mudarme a Francia - todavía con miedo, pero la comida y la vida es buena. ‘No tomar el trabajo en Paris’
And then, perhaps less surprising, there was love: a few tweets from people regretting that they had declared their love and ended up having their heart broken, but many, many more regretting not being brave - regretting having been afraid. There’s always the possibility of rejection, it’s better than the regret of not having tried.	Y entonces, tal vez menos sorprendente, fué el amor: unos pocos tweets de personas que se arrepentían de que había declarado su amor y terminaron con el corazón roto, pero muchos, muchos más se arrepentían de no ser valientes - lamento haber tenido miedo. Siempre hay la posibilidad de rechazo, pero es mejor que te rechacen a no intentarlo.
‘Not telling someone I loved them. 20 years too late now.’ 5 C - Marrying the first person who asked, because I thought no one would ever ask me.’	‘No decir a alguién que la quería. 20 años más tarde’ ‘Casarme con la primera persona que me lo pidió, porque pensaba que nadie me lo pediría jamas.’
It was encouraging that right along side the people who regretted a life lived in fear were others who had made a change who were now regretting the time it had taken to find their solution.	Fue alentador que junto a la gente que se arrepentía de vivir una vida con miedo, hubiera otras que habían hecho un cambio y que ahora se lamentaban del tiempo que les había llevado encontrar la solución.
‘Worrying too much about what other people thought of me.’ 6 A - Being scared all the time. Moved to France - still scary but food and life is good.	‘Me preocupaba mucho lo que otra gente pensara de mí’ ‘Escuchar a mi padre decir que mi voz era demasiado débil para ser cantante’
Intriguingly, of all the replies, only two people mentioned money - one regretting a flat they hadn’t bought, one regretting a sale.	Curiosamente, de todas las replicas, solo dos personas mencionaron el dinero - una se lamentaba de que no pudieron comprar un piso, otra de una venta.
‘Regret seems most often to be about fear.’	‘El arrepentimiento suele estar más relacionado con el miedo’
My favourite of all the replies was from @dorey1414. She tweeted me this:	Mi contestación favorita de todas fue de @dorey1414. Tuiteo esto:
‘’I’m 54, no friends, or family, only 18 Twitter followers, but I have everything I need. Biggest regret - not listening at school.’	‘Tengo 54, sin amigos ni familia, solo tengo 18 seguidores, pero tengo todo lo que necesito. El grandisimo arrepentimiento - no escuchar en la escuela’
At last, here was one tiny area where I could be useful! I retweeted her words and asked Twitter if they could help. Ten minutes later, her follower count had gone up to 24. By the morning, it was 360. She now has more than 900 and is massively excited about it, starting enthusiastic conversations with dozens of her new followers. Having left school before her exams and worked for 38 years in a job she doesn’t enjoy, she now has a chance to change her life.	¡Por fin, aquí había un pequeño espacio donde podía ser útil! Retitué sus palabras y le pregunte a Twitter si podían ayudarme. 10 minutos más tarde, su contador de seguidores había subido a 24. En la mañana, era de 360. Ahora tiene más de 900 y está muy emocionada, comenzando con conversaciones entusiastas con docenas de sus nuevos seguidores. Haber dejado el colegio antes de sus examenes y trabajar durante 38 años en un trabajo que no disfruta, ahora tiene una oportunidad de cambiar su vida.
Before I flew home from Chicago, I texted my son with this advice: ‘Take risks - they may go wrong but it’s better than regretting not having tried. And ring your mother.’	Antes de volver a casa desde Chicago, escribí a mi hijo con este consejo: ‘Toma riesgos - quizás te equivoques, pero es mejor que arrepentirte de no haberlo intentado. Y llama a tu madre.’

c Read the article again. Complete 1-6 with tweets A-F. What kind of words are left out in some of the tweets?

d Look at the highlighted words in the article. Which are nouns and which are adjectives? If it's a noun, write the adjective, and vice versa.

honest - adjective	honestly (honestidad) - nombre
sorrow (pena) - noun	sorrowful (triste) - adjective
anger (enojo) - noun	angry (enojado) - adjective
fear (miedo) - noun	fearful (temeroso) - adjective
brave (valiente) - adjective	bravery (valentía) - noun encouraging (alentador) -adj	encouragement (estimulo) - noun
excited (emoción) - adj	excitement (excitación) - noun
enthusiastic (entusiasmado) -adj	enthusiast (entusiasta) - noun

e If you had read Emma Freud's tweet What is your biggest regret?, what would you have written?
'I would have written: 'Not starting to learn Engish when I was younger.'
'I would have written: 'Not starting to travel around of the word when I could do it.

4 GRAMMAR wish for past regrets.
a 5.20 Listen to three people talking about regrets. What thing does each person regret?

Speaker 1 One thing I really regret is not being brave enough to ask out a girl who I met at a party last summer. I really liked her but I was just too scared to invite her on a date in case she said no. I wish I'd tried. I'm absolutely positive we would have got on well. Now it's too late - she's engaged to another guy!	Hablante 1 Una cosa de la que realmente me arrepiento es no haber sido los suficiente valiente para pedirle a una chica salir a la que conocí en la fiesta del último verano. Realmente me gustaba pero solo es que estaba aterrorizado de invitarla a una cita y que dijera que no. Desearía haberlo intentado. Estoy absolutamente convencido de que nos habría ido bien. Ahora es demasiado tarde - ¡Se ha comprometido con otro tipo!
Speaker 2 Um, I wish I'd had more time with my grandmother. She died when I was 12, and since then I've discovered that she must have been a really fascinating person, and there are so many things I would love to have been able to talk to her about. She was Polish but she was in Russia, in St Petersburg, during the Russian Revolution and she knew all sorts of interesting people at the time: painters, writers, people like that. I was only a kid so I never asked her much about her own life. Now, I'm discovering all about her through reading her old letters and papers, but I wish she'd lived longer so that I could have talked to her about those times face-to-face.	Hablante 2 Um, desearía haber pasado más tiempo con mi abuela. Era Polaca pero estaba en Rusia, en San Petersburgo, durante la Revolución de Rusia y conoció a todo tipo de personas interesantes: pintores, escritores, gente como eso. Solo era un niño así que nunca le pregunte mucho sobre su propia vida. Ahora, he descubierto todo lo que pensaba leyendo sus viejas cartes y papeles, pero desearía que hubiera vivido más para que pudiera hablar con ella sobre esos tiempos cara a cara.
Speaker 3 When I was 16 I got the chance to change schools and go to a better school to do my last two years. My parents were really keen for me to change because they thought I'd probably get better marks in the university entrance exams and so have a better chance of going to university. But I was totally against the idea because I didn't want to leave all my friends behind and I didn't know anyone at the other school. So, in the end I managed to convince them and I stayed at my old school. I did OK in my exams but not brilliantly. Um, now I wish I'd listened to my parents. It would have been much better for my future career, but at the time I just couldn't see it. 4&5 Colloquial English Talking about... waste a Read the biographical information about Candida brady. Have you heard of any of the films or people mentioned? I don't know this film, but I know the composer Vangelis and his music and the film Chariots of Fire.

Candida Brandy is a British journalist and film-maker. She founded her film company, Blenheim Films, in 1996 and has produced and directed several films and documentaries on a variety of topics, including youth culture, music, and ballet. In 2012, Candida completed her first full-length documentary feature film, Trashed, which follows the actor Jeremy Irons around the world as he discovers the growing environmental and health problems caused by waste - the billions of tons of rubbish that we generate every day - and the way we deal with it. The soundtrack for the film was composed by the Greek composer Vangelis, who wrote the award-winning soundtrack to Chariots of fire, and the film won several awards at film festivals. Her lastest film, Urban and the Shed Crew, based on the memoir of writer Bernard Hare, is about a young boy's struggle to survive on the streets of Leeds in the 1990s	Candida Brandy es una periodista y productora. Fundó la productora, Blenheim Films, en 1996 y ha producido y dirigido varias películas y documentales en una variedad de temas, incluida la cultura de la juventud, música, y balet. En 2012, Candida terminó su primer documental largo, Basura, que sigue al actor Jeremuy Irons alrededor del mundo donde descubre el crecimiento medioambiental y los problemas causados por la basura - Los billones de toneladas de basura que generamos cada día - y la forma en que lo tratamos. La banda sonora de la película está compuesta por el griego compositor Vangelis, quién escribio la aclamada banda sonora de Carros de fuego, y la película gano varios premios en el festival de cine. Su última película, Urban y el Shed Crew, basada en la memoria del escritor Bernard Hare, trata de un joven que está luchando por sobrevivir en las calles de Leeds en la decada de los 90.

b Watch Part 1 of an interview with her. Mark the sentences T (true) or F (false)

I: interviewer, C: Candida Brandy I: What were you hoping to do by making the film Trashed? C: Well, I think, um, the role of the film, um, for me was to raise awareness, um, on the topic and get it into the press so that people could start having a... a meaningful conversation about waste, which, um, is not a particularly, um, attractive subject, let's say. We ended up actually filming in eleven countries, um, but the stories that I've chosen are universal, and obviously I spoke to... to people in communities, um, in more countries, um, than we actually filmed in. Um, but their stories are certainly not isolated: they were repeated around the world, sadly, wherever you kind of want to pick, actually. I: How did you persuade Jeremy Irons to get involved in the film? C: I had worked with Jeremy some years ago on a... on a different film, and I was generally aware that he doesn't like waste, either. Um, he will, you know, wear his jumpers until they're worn out; he'll keep his cars until they're falling apart, you know; he'll repair everything - so he's always seen, you know, the value in reusing things. It's just something natural to him as well, so he just felt like a natural, um, first approach, and... and so I sent him the treatment and amazingly he... he loved it. I: How did you get Vangelis to write the soundtrack? C: Well, Jeremy and Vangelis have been friends for years, so, um, Jeremy sent him the rough cut of the film and Vangelis absolutely loved it. He... he is also a committed environmentalist, so he's always been aware. Um, he was aware because he worked with, um, Cousteau - sort of various people, you know - he was aware of issues for the seas and so on, um, but generally, again, he was very shocked, um, by the film and really wanted to get involved, so... I: What research did you do before you started making the film? C: I spent about a year, um, talking to communities, talking to experts, um, you know, obviusly reading an awful lot, um, and, um, just ingesting it all, because obviously, again, it's such an enormous topic to take on.	E: ¿Qué esperabas lograr al hacer la película Trashed? C: Bueno, creo, um, el tema de la película, um, para mí fue concienciar, um, en el tema y conseguir presionar tanto que la gente pudiera empezar a tener una, una conversación significativa sobre el desperdicio, que, um, no es particularmente, um, un tema atractavio, digamos. Nosotros terminamos filmando en 11 paises, um, pero las historias que hemos elegido son universales, y obviamente hablaba de... de la gente de comunidades, um, en más paises, um, que los que se filmó. Um, pero sus historias no son casps aislados: se repetían a lo largo del mundo, tristemente, dondequiera que uno quiera elegir, en realidad. E: ¿Cómo persuadistes a Jeremy Irons para involucrarse en la película? C: Estabe trabajando con Jeremy algunos años en una... en una película diferente, y en general, sabía que tampoco le gustaba desperdiciar. Um, él, sabes, lleva sus jerséis hasta que están desgastados; Tiene sus coches hasta se están desmoronando, sabes; reparará todo - así que siempre ha visto, sabes, el valor de reusar las cosas. También es algo natura en él, entonces se siente natural, um, primer acercamiento, y... y entonces le envié el guión y sorprendentemente... le encanto. E: ¿Cómo conseguiste que Vangelís compusiera la BSO? C: Bueno, Jeremy y Vangelis han sido amigos por años, así que, um, Jeremy le envió la primera versión de la película y a Vangelis le encantó. Él... él también es un convencido medioambientalista, así que él siempre ha sido consciente. Um, fué consciente porque trabajo con, um, Cousteau - ese tipo de personas, sabes - era consciente de los problemas del mar y también, um, pero generalmente, de nuevo, estaba muy sorprendido, um, por la película y realmente también quería involucrarse... E: ¿Qué investigación hiciste antes de comenzara a filmar? C: Pasé un año, um , hablando con las comunidades, hablando con expertos, um, sabes, obviamente leyendo mucho, um, y, um, simplemente ingeriendo todo, porque obviamente, de nuevo, es un tema enorme a asumir.

1 Candida made the film Trashed because she wanted people to know more about the problem of waste. T
2 Jeremy Irons is a person who loves buying new things. - F
3 Candida was surprised that he immediately loved the film proposal. - T
4 Vangelis is a good friend of Candida's - F
5 Vangelis had previous experience of projects related to the environment. - T
6 She didn't need to do much research before making the film because she was already an expert on the subject. - F

Glossary: rough cut: the first version of a film after the different scenes have been put together Jacques Cousteau: a well-known French conversationist and film-maker who studied the sea and all forms of life in water.

c Now watch again and say why the F sentences are false.
2 - Jeremy Irons is a person who loves repaire everything.
4 - Vangelis is a good friend of Jeremy.
6 - She spent about a year, talking to communities, talking to expert.

d Have you seen any documentaries about the environment? What did you learn from them? Yes, I have. I learn to respet the environment and I'm more consciencious about this topic.

Part 2
a Now whatch Part 2. Answer the questions.

I: Rubbish isn't very attractive visually. Was that a problem for you as a film-maker? C: Er... yes and no, um, strangely enough. Obviously, I had a wonderful, um, DOP - Director of Photography - so, um, he can pretty much make anything look beautiful, I think. But, um, I wanted to choose -as... as I've said earlier, um, you know, I did a lot of research, and so sadly, these things were repeatable and... and in every country around the world - so I wanted to choose, um, beautiful places wherever possible, um, that had been ruined, unfortunately, by, um, man-made rubbish. So, um, the ancient port of Saida in Lebanon - um, the fact that, you know, you've got this huge mountain of waste which was formerly a flat sandy beach.	E: La basura no es muy atractiva visualmente. ¿Fué un problema para tí como productora? C: Er... si y no, um, sufiente extraño. Obviamente, tuve un maravilloso, um, DOP - Director de Fotografía - entonces, um, pudo hacer que muchas cosas se vieran hermosas, creo. Pero, um, esperé elegir - como... como he dicho antes, um, sabes, hice mucha investigación, y tristemente, esas cosas se repetían y... en cada país del mundo - entonces quería elegir, um, lugares bonitos donde fuera posible, um, que había sido arruinado, desafortunadamente, por, um, la basura del hombre. Entonces, um, el antiguo puerto de Saida en Lebanon - um, en realidad, sabes, se había convertido en una gran montaña de basura donde antes era una playa de arena.
I: Documetaries about how we're destroying the planet can be very depressing. Was that also a challenge for you?	E: Los documentales sobre lo que estamos destruyendo el planeta puede ser muy depresivo. ¿Eso también fué un cambio para tí?
C: A huge challenge, yes. Um, I would have preferred to make a much more cheerful, um, documentary than, um, I think 'cause we were very much aware that we wanted to offer solutions at the end of it, but you are... um, the subject is not a cheerful subject. Um, I could have gone further, I think, with it, but I didn't want to because actually, you know, you could sort of end up feeling that you just want to go and shoot yourself, which is not what I wanted. I wanted to feel that, you know, people feel that they can make a difference to this topic.	C: Un gran cambio, si. Um, Habría preferido hacerlo mucho más animado, um, documentalmente que, un, creo que es porque estabamos mucho más conscienzados de que queríamos era ofrecer soluciones al final, pero estamos... um, la materia no es un material que anime. Um, podría haber ido más, creo, que eso, pero no quería hacerlo porque en realidad, sabes, podrías terminar sintiendo que solo quieres ir y pegarte un tiro, que no es lo que quería. Quería sentir que, sabes, la gente sienta que pueden marcar la diferencia con este tema.
I: In the film, you focus on air pollution, land pollution, and water pollution - which do you think is the most worrying? C: Um, if I had to pick onem, um, which I would be reluctant to do... er... it would be water, without a doubt. I think that what has happened to all of the oceans - and beaches, actually, as well - um, in the world in the last thirty years is astonishing in the scale and the speed. Um, you know, there are certain places in the world, that, you know... that you have to dig down on a beach, um, over a foot before you'll find sand that doesn't have plastic in it. Unfortunately, what's happened with the way that soft plastic degrades in water is that, um, the pieces become so fragmented that they're the same size as the zooplankton, um, which obviously is in the food chain.	E: En la película, te centras en la polución del aire, la polución de la tierra, y la polución del agua - ¿Qué piensas que es más preocupante? C: Um, si tuviera que elegir, um, lo que me resistiría a hacer... er... sería el agua, sin duda. Creo que lo que ha ocurrido en todos los oceanos - y playas, en realidad, también - um, en el mundo en los últimos 30 años es asombroso en la escala y velocidad. Um, sabes, hay ciertos lugares del mundo, que, sabes, que tienes que escabar en la playa, um, sobre un 'pie' antes de que encuentres arena que no tenga plástico. Desafortunadamente, está ocurriendo con ese plástico suave que se degrada en el agua, que, en trozos porque se fragmenta en trozos como el zooplankton,um, que obviamente pasa a la cadena alimenticia

1 Which was the bigger problem for Candida:
- making the film visually attractive or
- trying not to make it too depressing?

2 What kind of pollution does she think is the most worring: air, land, or sea?

b Watch again. Complete the sentences with one word.
1 Candida had a - DOP (Director of Photography)
2 She wanted to film in beautiful places that had been - by man-made rubbish.
3 She would have preferred to make a more - documentary.
4 They were very much aware that they wanted to offer - at the end of the film.
5 She says you have to dig down over a foot deep on a beach to find sand that doesn't have any - in it.
6 She says the pieces of plastic in the water become so fragmented that they're the same size as the zooplankton, which is in the food chain.

Glossary Said (or Sidon) a port in Lebanon, its third largest city. a foot: UK measurement = 30.5 centimetres. zooplankton: microscopic organisms that live in water.

c Which kind of pollution, air, land, or water, is the biggest problem where you live? In the three places, different companies are polluting the air, destroying the land, and throwing away trash... people same it.

Part 3

a Now watch Part 3. Answer the questions.

I: Who do you think is mostly to blame for the problems we have with waste? C: I tried very hard, actually, not to blame one person or things, um, in the film - actually quite deliberately, because I think in a way, um, it lets us off the hook, um, and it also, um... I think we all need to work on the... the problem together because it's too complicated to blame one person or one thing or one act, or, um, you know, I think it's... it's multi-faceted, unfortunately.	E: ¿Quíen piensas que tiene la mayor parte de la culpa de los problemas que tenemos con los residuos? C: Me esforcé mucho, de echo, por no culpar a una persona o una cosas, um, en la película - en realidad, lo hice deliberadamente, porque creo que, en cierto modo, um, nos libra de la responsabilidad, um, y también, um... Creo que todos necesitamos trabajar en.. en el problema juntos porque es demasiado complicado culpar a una perosna o una cosa o un acto, o, um, sabes, creo que es... son muchos factores, desafortunadamente.
I: Your film finishes on an optimistic note with the example of San Francisco's zero-waste policy. Can you tell us a bit about that? C: Well, I... I actually in the film ended up, um, using San Francisco as the example because I wanted to show... er... that zero waste could be achieved on a big scale. When you go and stay in San Francisco in your hotel room, you'll have four different bins, and you'll have signs on the wall of what goes into each bin, so it's very, very easy to... to recycle, and I think that's a huge part of what we should be doing.	E: Tu película termina con una nota optimista con el ejemplo de la política de cero residuos de San Francisco. ¿Puedes contarnos un poco sobre ello? C: Bien, yo... en realidad en la película termina, um, usando San Francisco como el ejemplo, porque quería mostrar... er... que cero residuos podría ser logrado en una mayor escala. Cuando vas y te quedas en San Francisco en la habitación de tu hotel, tendrás cuatro contenedores diferentes, y tendrás señales en la pared de que hace cada contenedor, así que es muy, muy facil... reciclar, y creo que es una gran parte de lo que deberíamos hacer.
I: Has the film changed your own habits regarding waste? C: I don't think the film has particularly changed my own habits dramatically, um, because I've always been thrifty, um, by nature because, um, I was lucky enough to spend a lot of time with my grandparents when I was growing up, and the post-war, sort of, philosophy of never wasting anything, it just, you know, it was instilled in me. I ride the same bicycle that I've had since I was fifteen years old, and over the years obviously had it repaired and repaired, but I take tremendous pride in the fact that I've always, um, ridden the same bike, and, you know, I have lovely memories of it, so - and with it - so, um, I think... I think we need a slight change of mindset to make things cool the longer you have them, in a way, than actually this perpetual thing of buying new things for the sake of it.	E: ¿La película ha cambiado tus otros hábitos en relación con los residuos? C: No creo que la película haya cambiado particularmente mis habitos drásticamente, um, porque siempre he sido ahorrativo, um, por naturaleza, porque, um, afortunadamente pasaba suficiente tiempo con mis abuelos cuando estaba creciendo, y la postguerra, algo así, la filosofía de nunca malgastar, justo, sabes, me lo inculcaron. Llevaba la misma bicicleta desde los quince años, y con los años tenía que repararla y repararla, pero estaba orgulloso de que siempre, um, llevaba la misma bicicleta, y sabes, tengo recuerdos bonitos, entonces - y con eso - entonces, um, creo, creo que necesitamos un cambio leve de mentalidad para hacer las cosas hermosas más longevas de lo que son, en cierto modo, es más que esa constumbre perpetua de comprar cosas nuevas por el mero hecho de hacerlo.

1 Who does she blame for the problem of waste? everyone and everything
2 Why does San Francisco offer a positive note at the end of the film? because everyone can do the same.
3 Has the film changed her own habits? No, it hasn't, because he's always done it.

b Qatch again. What does she says about...?
1 hotels in San Francisco: they put differents bins in the rooms, then you can recycle the rubbish.
2 her grandparents: they taught him to recycle.
3 her bicycle: he always repaired his bicycle, he never bought a new bicycle.

Glossary zero waste: the recycling and re-using of all products. bins: containers where people thorw their rubbish

c How much recycling do you do personally? Are you optimistic or pessimistic about the future of the environment? I'm a pessimistic person, I think everybody have to fight against the rubbish, but there are many people throw the rubbish on the floor and they are irresponsible.

2 LOOKING AT LANGUAGE

Tip: Comment adverbs Candida uses a lot of comment adverbs (e.g. unfortunately) to clarify how she feels about what she is saying.

Watch some extracts from the interview and write in the missing adverbs.
1 'We ended up actually fliming in 11 countries...'
2 '... but the stories that I've chosen are universal and, obviously, I spoke to, to people in communities, um, in more countries, um, than we actually filmed in...'
3 '... and so I sent him the treatment and amazingly he, um, he loved it.'
4 '... but generally, again, he was very shocked, um, by the film and really wanted to get involved.'

5 '... yes and no, um, strangely enough. Obviously I had a wonderful DOP, Director of Photography, so, um, he can pretty much make anything look beautiful...'
6 'I did a lot of research and so, sadly, these things were repeatable and, in every country around the world...'

The Conversation	La conversación.
I=Interviewer, J=Joanne, S=Simon, Sy=Syinat I: Do you think we will ever be plastic free? J: That's such a huge topic... S: That's a massive topic. J: ...isn't it? But actually it's an area - we've got to be plastic free ultimately. We've certainly, if we don't, if we're not plastic free, we need to find an alternative, don't we? S: I think, um, businesses particularly - perhaps in the food and beverages industry - are already starting. I noticed in a pub the other day, they've changed the straws from plastic to cardboard - sorry, to, to paper - which is a step in the right direction... J: It's a step, it's a step. S: It's a small step, but it's a step, but at least they're taking notice and doing things like that. J: Yeah, agreed. I think it's got to be customer-led though, don't you? S: Yeah. Sy: Yeah, yeah. J: We consumers have got to push it. Sy: Yeah, yeah. J: Because if we don't demand paper straws and we keep saying actually no, we have to have plastic... S: Yeah absolutely. J: ...they're going to keep producing plastic. S: I mean, I don't know about you, but I recycle, it seems like a bag a week of plastic - I can't believe how much plastic there is. J: I know, mmm. It's really awful actually. Sy: Yeah. And it's very hard to be plastic free. J: It is actually. S: It is. J: I mean, if you try really hard - and I do try hard - um, if you go and you shop in supermarkets, it's incredibly hard to... Sy: Yeah. J: ...buy organic in non-plastic. Sy: Everything is wrapped. S: I think there are some businesses now that you can take your plastic items with you to the shop and fill up with goods rather than taking plastic away from - I think that's a good start, but it's such a small thing. It needs to be much bigger. Sy: But that'd be very difficult on a large scale, I believe. S: It would be a lot - it would be difficult because mass counsumers wouldn't want to do that. Especially... Sy: Yeah, no, but if you think about it, eight billion people, three meals a day... yeah, so, food and beverages would be... S: I was reading a story the other day - apparently, we sent some plastic to china and they've now sent it back to us in containers saying 'Actually, we're not recycling your plastic, you need to, you need to do it where you are rather than sending it to us.' J: Yes, and that gets us onto the other topic: it's not just stopping using new plastic, it's recycling what's already out there, because the the, amount that's out there at the moment is just scary. S: And the amount that's killing whales or getting caught in whales or, or dolphins or fish is just... Sy: Turtles, yeah. J: The deepest place on the planet... S: It's full of plastic. J: ...and they found plastic. I mean, that's just so depressing, isn't it? S: It's depressing. So... J: I think, I think the awareness is there now and that's got to be positive, right? Sy: Yeah! S: So plastic free, I think there has to be some sort of - if you said plastic free five years, that's never going to happen, if you said ten	E: ¿creéis que alguna vez estaremos libres de plástico? J: Es un tema muy amplio. S: Es un tema grandisimo. J: ... verdad? Pero en realidad en un area - hemos conseguido estar libres de plástico. Es cierto, que si nosotros no, si no nos libramos del plástico, necesitamos encontrar una alternative, ¿verdad? S: Creo, um, particularmente los negocios - quizás en la comida y la industria de bebidas - ya están comenzando. Tengo noticias de que el otro día en un pub, cambiaron las pájitas de plastico por otras de cartón - lo siento, de papel - que es un paso en la dirección correcta... J: paso a paso. S: es un pequeño paso, pero es un paso, pero al final se están haciendo eco y haciendo cosas como esa. J: Si, estoy de acuerdo. Creo que se está consiguiendo concienciar al consumidor, ¿verdad? S: si. Sy: si, si. J: Los consumidores tenemos que impulsarlo. Sy: Si, si. J: porque si no pedimos pajitas de papel y seguimos diciendo que no, que queremos de plástico... S: Si, absolutamente. J: ... vamos a seguir produciendo de plástico. S: Quiero decir, no se tú, pero yo reciclo, como una bolsa de plástico a la semana - No puedo creer el plástico que hay. J: Lo sé, mmm. Es horrible. Sy: Yeah. Y es muy difícil estar libre de plático. J: ciertamente. S: si. J: Quiero decir, si lo intentas mucho - y lo intentas - um, si vas y compras en supermercados, es increiblemente difícil... Sy: I'm sure, I'm sure you guys have heard the fact that there's more plastic in the sea by weight than tere are fish. J: Yes, isn't that awful? S: Yeah, it's very scary! J: Actually, it's the time frame, I think, is quite significant as well. That actually this has happened really since my grandmother was a child - she never had plastic. Sy: Yeah, we're talking past century. J: Yeah! Really, less. More like a half-century. I can't remember the exact date, but something like that - it's a reasonably short time, and we've really got less than that, a lot less than that to turn it around, so we have to come up with alternatives. But surely we can do that! Sy: I have some positive news for you. S: Go on. Sy: so they have found bacteria that have evolved to digest nylon plastic... S: Yes, I knew about that. Sy: ...just naturally. That's amazing! J: So we could get there. S: So plastic munchers that can munch plastic - is tat what you're saying? Sy: Yes. J: Yeah. S: Cool! J: And you can get plastic bottles - I read you can get plastic bottles now - that are on sale somewhere in London, one of the museums I think - plastic bottles that actually you can then eat the plastic. S: Oh wow. OK. Sy: Really? J: I think that's just so amazing. S: That sounds pretty, that sounds pretty cool. J: So yes, we think we could be plastic free, it's possible, but... Sy: But it'd take a lot of work. S: I think it will. Cool. S: Yeah.

They think being plastic-free is definitely possible / possible but difficult / impossible b Watch again. Answer with S (Simon), J (Joanne), or Sy (Syinat).

Who...?
1 gives an example of plastic straws.
2 thinks that consumers need to lead the way.
3 brings up the problem of plastic packaging in supermarkets.
4 mentions that china no longer accepts other countries' recycling.
5 suggests that it might be possible to be plastic free in 20 years' time.
6 says that there is more plastic than fish in the sea.
7 compares the use of plastic today to in the past.
8 tells the others about bacteria that can eat plastic.
9 talks about plastic bottles that you can use and then eat the plastic.

c Do you agree with the participants about the possibility of being plastic free? Why (not)?

d Watch some extracts and match some of the different ways that the participants respond to what another person had said.
1 The deepest place on the planet... and they found plastic. A, C
2 ...there's more plastic in the sea by weight than there are fish... B, D, E
3 ...plastic bottles that actually you can then eat the plastic. F, G

A Yes, isn't that awful?
B Oh wow!
C It's depressing.
D Yes, it's very scary!
E I mean that's just so depressing, isn't it?
F I think that's just so amazing.
G That sounds pretty cool.

e With a partner, say what the function of each response is: responding to something positive or something negative.
positive: B, F, G, negative: A, C, D, E

f Now have a conversation in groups of three.
1 What kind of things in everyday life do you think really make a difference to the environment?
2 What do you think the government could do to make people recycle more?

Review 5A, 5B, 5 Colloquial English

6A Night night 'Laugh and the world laughs with you snore and you snore alone'

a Do you ever have problems sleeping? Why (not)? No, I don't. Because I normally sleep my eight hours everyday, I always go to the bed at the same time.

What kinds of things might make it difficult for people to sleep well? Work, kids, phones, tv, etc... a lot of things can make you sleep very badly.

b 6.1 Listen to three people, Rafa, Mike, and Steph, who all have problems sleeping at night. What are the main reasons they give? Have any of them managed to solve the problem?

1 Rafa I: Why do you have problems sleeping? R: Well I'm Spanish, but I moved to London a few years ago when I married a British woman. I've been living here for three years now. I have a lot of problems getting to sleep at night because our bedroom just isn't dark enough. I can't get used to sleeping in a bedroom where there's light coming in from the streetlights outside. In Spain, I always used to sleep in complete darkness because my bedroom window had blinds and when I went to bed i used to close the blinds completely. But here in England, our bedroom window just has curtains and curtains don't block out the light properly. It takes me a long time to get to sleep at night and I always wake up more often than I used to do in Spain. I: So why don't you just get thicker curtains? R: Because my wife doesn't like sleeping in a completely dark room. She says that she feels claustrophobic if the room is too dark. I: Ah, yes, some people do feel like that.	1 Rafa E: ¿Por qué tienes problemas al dormir? R: Bueno, soy Español, pero me mude a Londres hace unos pocos años cuando me case con una mujer británica. He estado viviendo aquí por 3 años. Tengo muchos problemas en conciliar el sueño por la noche porque nuestra habitación no está lo suficientemente oscura. No puedo dormir en una habitación donde hay luz entrando desde la calle. En España, siempre solía dormir completamente a oscuras porque la ventana de mi habitación tenía persiana y cuando me iba a la cama solía cerrarlas completamente. Pero aquí, en Inglaterra, nuestra ventana solo tiene cortinas y no bloquean la luz del exterior correctamente. Me lleval mucho tiempor conciliar el sueño y siempre me despierto más amenudo que en España. E: ¿Por qué no solo usas unas cortinas más gruesas? R: Porque mi esposa no le gusta dormir completamente a oscuras. Dice que tiene claustrofobia si está a oscuras. E: Ah, si, algunas personas lo sufren.
2 Mike I: Why do you have problems sleeping? M: Well, I'm a policeman and so I have to do shift work which means I work at night every other week, so I start work at 10 o'clock at night and finish at 6.00 in the morning the following day. The main problem is that my body's used to sleeping at night, not during the day. So it's very hard to get used to being awake all night and trying to work and concentrate when your body is just telling you to go to bed. I: But isn't it something you eventually get used to? M: Actually no, because I work during the day for one week and then the next week I work at night which means that just when my body has got used to being awake at night then I go back to working in the day and then of course I can't get to sleep at night because my body thinks it's going to have to work all night. The other problem is that when I get home after working a night shift, everyone else is just starting to wake up, so that means that it can be really noisy. The neighbours put on the radio, and bang doors and shout to wake their children up. So even though I'm really tired, it's just very hard to get to sleep. I: How many hours do you usually sleep? M: Before I became a policeman, I used to sleep about eight or nine hours a night, but I think now I probably don't sleep more than six hours.	2 Mike E: ¿Por qué tienes problemas al dormir? M: Bien, soy policía y tengo que hacer cambio de turnos con lo que significa que trabajo por la noche cada pocas semanas, entonces comienzo a trabajar a las 10 de la noche y termino a las 6 de la mañana del día siguiente. El principal problema es que mi cuerpo está acostumbrado a dormir por la noche, no durante el día. Es muy duro estar levantado toda la noche intentando trabajar y concentrarte cuando tu cuerpo solo te dice que te vayas a la cama. E: ¿Pero no es algo que solías hacer? M: En realidad no, porque trabajo durante el día una semana y entonces a la siguiente trabajo de noche, entonce mi cuerpo ya se ha acostumbrado a levantarse de noche, entonces vuelvo a trabajar por el día y por supuesto no puedo conseguir dormir por la noche porque mi cuerpo cree que trabajo toda la noche. Otro problema es que cuando voy a casa después de trabajar por la noche, todos comienzan a despertarse, lo que significa que puede ser muy ruidoso. Los vecinos ponen la radio, y golpean las puertas y gritan para que los niños se levanten. Entonces eso hace que me sienta muy cansado, es muy duro conseguir dormir. E: ¿Cuántas horas duermes normalmente? M: Antes de ser policía, solía dormir sobre 8 o 9 horas, pero ahora probablemente no duerma más de 6 horas.
3 Steph I: Why do you have problems sleeping? S: I have a lot of problems sleeping because of jet lag. I have to travel a lot in my job and I take a lot of long haul flights. I fly to New York quite often and I arrive maybe at 6.00 in the evening my time, but when it's only one o'clock in the afternoon in New York. So at 5.00 in the afternoon New York time, I'll be feeling tired and ready for bed because it's my bed time. But I can't go to sleep because I'm probably still working or having dinner with my American colleagues. Then when I do finally get to bed at say midnight, I find that I wake up in the middle of the night because my body thinks that it's morning because it's still working on UK time. I: And can you get back to sleep when you wake up? S: No, that's the problem. I can't get back to sleep. And then the next day when I have meetings I feel really sleepy. It's very hard to stay awake all day. And just when I'm finally used to being on New York time, then it's time to fly back to the UK. And flying west to east is even worse. I: Oh! Why's that? S: Because when I get off the plane it's early morning in the UK. But for me, on New York time, it's the middle of the night. It takes	3 Steph ¿Por qué tienes problemas al dormir? S: Tengo muchos problemas de sueño por el jet lag. Tengo que viajar mucho por mi trabajo y cojo vuelos largos. Vuelo bastante a New York y cuando llego serán las 6 de la mañana, pero solo es la 1 de la madrugada en New York. Entonces a las 5 de la tarde en New York, me siento muy cansado y preparado para ir a la cama porque es mi hora de dormir. Pero no puedo ir a dormir porque probablemente todavía esté trabajando o comiendo con mis compañeros americanos. Entonces cuando finalmente voy a la cama es medianoche, encuentro que me despierto a media noche porque mi cuerpo cree que es de día porque piensa que estamos en UK. I ¿Y puedes volver a dormir cuando te despiertas? S: No, ese es el problema. No puedo volver a dormir. Y entonces al día siguiente en las reuniones me siento dormido. Es muy duro estar despierto todo el día. Y cuando finalmente ya me he acostumbrado a la hora de New York, entonces tengo que volver a UK. Y volando de oeste a este es incluso peor. I: ¡Oh! ¿Por qué? S: Porque cuando sale el avión es de día en el RU. Pero para mi, en NY es media noche. Me lleva 4 o 5 días recuperarme de estos me four or five days to recover from one of those trips. I: Gosh, that must be really difficult for you. S: Yeah, it is.	viajes. I: Dios mio, debe ser muy difícil para tí. S: Si, lo es.

Rafa: He can't sleep because his bedroom have light.
Mike: He work at night and sleep in the morning when people do noise.
Steph: jet lag
No, they don't solve their sleep problems

c 6.2 Listen to six extracts from the listening. Complete the gaps with a few words.

Rafa
I can't get used to sleeping where there's light coming in from the streetlights outside.
I always used to sleep in complete darkness.

Mike
The main problem is that my body's used to sleeping at night. not during the day.
Before I became a policeman, I used to sleep eight or nine hours a night.

Steph
And just when I'm finally used to being on New York time, then it's time to fly back to the UK.

d Look the highlighted phrases. Answer the questions with a partner.
1 What do you think used to means after be / get?
a tired of b accustomed to c good at 2 What's the difference between be + adjective, e.g. be old, be used to, and get + adjective, e.g. get old, get used to?
be used to (estar acostumbrado): it was finished.
get used to (acostumbrarse): it was in progress.

3 What form does the verb take after used to and be / get used to?
- used to + infinitive
- be / get used to + verb-ing

e p.214 Grammar Bank 6A---------- 6A used to, be used to, get used to----------

6.2 used to / didn't used to + infinitive

1 I used to sleep for eight hours every night, but now I only sleep for six.
I hardly recongized Alan. He didn't use to have a beard.

2 When I lived in France as a child, we used to have croissants for breakfast.
We would buy them every morning form the local baker

1 We use used to / didn't use to + infinitive to talk about past habits or repeated actions or situations / states which have changed.
- used to doesn't exist in the present tense. For present habits, use usually + the present simple, e.g. I usually walk to work. NOT ~~I use to walk to work~~.

2 We can also use would (insteand of used to) to refer to repeated actions in the past with action verb (e.g. run, listen, study, cook, etc.) However, we can only use used to, not would, for non-action verbs (e.g. be, need, know, like, etc.) e.g. Alan didn't use to be so thin. NOT ~~Alan wouldn't be so thin~~.
- With would, you must use a past time expression, or it must be already clear that you are talking about the past.
- We can use the past simple, often with an adverb of frequency, in the same way as used to and would to talk about repeated past actions, e.g. I often got up / used to get up / would get up early when I lived in Africa, to watch the sun rise.

6.4 be used to / get used to + gerund

1 I'm used to sleeping with the curtains open, I've never slept with them closed.
2 A I can't get used to working at night. I feel tired all the time.
B Don't worry, you'll soon get used to it.

1 Use be used to + gerund to talk about things you are accustomed to doing, or a new situation which is now familiar or less strange.
2 Use get used to + gerund to talk about a new situation which is becoming familiar or less strange.
The difference between be used to and get used to is exactly the same as the difference between be and get + adjective, e.g. It's dark and it's getting dark.

a Right (v) or wrong (x)? Correct the mistakes in the highlighted phrases.
0 I can't get used to getting up so early. v

6A obligation, necessity, prohibition, advice.---------- obligation and necessity

1 I have to work every evening.
Do we have to leave a tip?
They had to wait for two hour at the airport.
2 You must be more careful.
Must I show ID at the door?
You must pay him back as soon as possible.
3 I need to buy some food for tonight.
Do we need to book a table?

1 We use have to to talk about all kinds of obligation, have to can be used in all tenses.
2 We also use must to talk about obligation, must is only used in the present tense. The meaning is similar to have to, but must is especially used when the speaker sees something as a personal obligation. Compare:
- I have to start work at 9.00. (an external obligation, the rule where I work)
- I must remember to book a table (apersonal obligation, one that I impose on myself)
3 We can use need to talk about things that are necessary, (need to) can be used in all tenses.

no obligation / no necessity

1 You don't have to pay me now.
2 We won't need to take the car - it's walking distance from her.
3 You needn't hurry. We have plenty of time.

1 We use (not) have to when there is no obligation to do something.
2 We use (not) need to when it is not necessary to do something.
3 We can also use needn't + infinitive without to to say that it is not necessary to do something.

prohibition

You mustn't be rude to customers.
You mustn't serve alcohol to people under 16.

- We use mustn't when something is prohibited, dangerous, or wrong.
- mustn't and don't have to are completely different. Compare:
You mustn't drive. You've been drinkin. = Don't drive. (It's dangerous / wrong to do it)
You don't have to drive. We can get the bus. = It's not necessary to drive. (There's no obligation or necessary)

advice

1 You should try that new Vietnamese restaurant.
He shouldn't drink so much coffee.
2 You ought to get a new phone.
She oughtn't to spend so much on clothes.
3 When you're in Venice, you must / have to have a drink at Harry's Bar!

1 We use should / shouldn't to give someone advice, or to say what we think is the right thing for ourselves or for someone else to do.

2 We can also use ought to / oughtn't to to give advice. The meaning is the same as should / shouldn't 3 We can use must and have to to give strong advice when we think it's very important that someone does something.

a Circle the correct form. Tick v if boot are possible.
0 They (had to / must) leave early because of the baby.
1 I (mustn't / needn't) forget to send Maria's birthday card.

6B Gerunds and infinitives----------

6.14 verbs followed by the gerund and verbs followed by the infinitive

1 I enjoy listening to music. We couldn't help laughing.
2 I'm really looking forward to seeing you.
I think you should give up drinking coffee after dinner.
3 I want to speak to you. They can't afford to buy a new car.
4 I'd rather eat in than go out tonight. She left him borrow her car
5 It started to rain. It started raining.

- When one verb follows another, the first verb determines the form of the second. This can be the gerund (verb + -ing) or the infinitive.
1 Use the gerund after certain verbs and expressions, e.g. enjoy, can't help, feel like.
2 When a phrasal verb is followed by another verb, the second verb is in the gerund.
3 Use the infinitive (with to) after certain verbs, e.g. want, afford.
4 Use the infinitive (without to) after modal verbs and some expressions, e.g. might, would rather, and after the verbs make and let.
5 Some verbs, e.g. start, begin and continue can be followed by the gerund or infinitive (with to) with no difference in meaning.

p.236 Appendix Verb pattern: verbs followed by the gerund or the infinitive.

Tip: like, love, hate, and prefer like, love, hate, and prefer are usually used with the gerund in British English, but they can also be used with the infinitive.
We tend to use the gerund when we talk generally and the infinitive when we talk specifically, e.g.
I like swimming. (general) I like to swim first thing in the morning. (specific)
When like, love, hate, and prefer are used with would, tehy are always followed by to + infinitive, e.g. I'd prefer to stay at home tonight.

6.15 verbs that can be followed by the gerund or infinitive with a change in meaning.

1 Remember to lock the door.
I remember going to Venice as a child.
2 Sorry, I forgot to do it.
I'll never forget seeing the Taj Mahal.
3 I tried to open the window.

7 A REPORT----------

Living in Milton keynes Introduction This report describes the town of Milton Keynes. It gives some information about the history of the town and some of its features and facilities, and includes a personal view of what it is like to live there.	Vivir en Miton Keynes. Introducción. Este reportaje describe el pueblo de Miton keynes. Da algo de información sobre la historia del pueblo y algo de sus características e instalaciones, e incluye una vista personal de como se vive allí.
1 History In the 1960s, town planners wanted to encourage people to move out of London. Their idea was to create a modern, efficient town with good facilities that would be easy to travel around and healthy to live in. So, the 'new town' of Milton Keynes was built in the south-east of England.	1 Historia En 1960, los planificadores del pueblo querían animar a la gente a mudarse fuera de Londres. Su idea era crear un pueblo moderno e eficiente con buenas instalaciones en el que vivir sería saludable y fácil de viajar a través de ella. Así que, el 'nuevo pueblo' de Milton Keynes fué construido en el Sur-este de Inglaterra.
2 Present day The town now has a popultation of around 250.000. Wide, straight roads join the different living, districts, with many lakes and green spaces between them. The centre is a business and shopping district. In terms of transport, Milton Keynes is particularly well-connected: it is near the M1 motorway and is mid-way between Lodon, Birmingham, Oxford, and Cambridge.	2. En la actualidad El pueblo tiene una población sobre los 250.000 habitantes. Las carreteras anchas y largas unen las diferentes viviendas y los distritos con muchos lagos y espacios verdes entre ellos. El centro es un distrito de negocios y tiendas. En terminos de transporte, Milton Keynes está bien conectada: Está cerca de la autopista M1 y a medio camino entre Londres, Birmingham, Oxford y Cambridge.
3 Activities In general, it is a town that is easy to walk or cycle around. For those who enjoy more challenging sports, there are some super facilities. These incluce Treetop Extreme, the biggest 'high rope' adventure course in the UK, and Snozone, an indoor real snow slope where you can learn to ski and snowboard.	3 Actividades En general, es fácil caminar y circular en bicicleta por el pueblo. Para el que disfruta de los deportes más exigentes, hay algunas instalaciones excelentes. Que incluye la Treetop Extrem, el mayor circuito de aventuras el altura del RU, y el Snozone, una pista de ski cubierta donde puedes aprender a esquiar y snowboard.
4 Culture Milton Keynes was the first place in the UK to have a multiscreen cinema, and there is also a large concert venue called The Bowl, it has an international orchestrn and over 200 works of public art - it is particularly famous for the sculpture of concrete cows.	4 Cultura Milton Keynes fué el primer lugar del RU en tener un multicine, y también hay una gran sala de conciertos llamado The Bowl, que alberga una orquesta internacional y más de 200 obras de arte público - en particular es famoso por las esculturas de vacas de hormigón.
Conclusion To sum up, it seems that the new town of Milton Keynes has been a success. Some people feel that new towns lack atmosphere and a sense of community, but the majority of residents here are proud of their town. 'Things tend to be more modern and spectacular in Milton Keynes than anywhere else,' says Simon Clawson, who has lived there since he was four years old. On balance, the planners of the 1960s have achieved their aims.	Conclusión En resumen, parece que la nueva ciudad de Milton Keynes ha sido un exito. Algunas personas sienten que al nuevo pueblo le falta atmosfera y un sentido de comunidad, pero la mayoría de residentes están orgullosos del pueblo. 'Las cosas tienden a ser más modernas y espectaculares en Miton Keynes que en otros lugares.' dice Simon Clawson, quién vive desde hace 4 años. MoonLight City Project. Introduction. Nowadays many people dreams of going to the Moon; in fact, the recent days, a group of scientifics traveled around the Moon and returned to our planet. This report describe this question: What would it be to live on the Moon? Project. Designers, scientifics, physicists and other proffesionals are designing a new project: MoonLight City; this city will have magnificent buildings, parks and all the comforts for families. Living in the Future. In this city, families will be able to enjoy a lot of luxuries while they are working in the differents jobs. For example, in terms of transport, they will need less oil because cars will work with solar energy. In general, they will be able to contemplate wonderful views of the Earth and the Sun. The next generation. People could have children in the Moon, and most of them would grow up and have a life away from Earth. In conclusion this project is really complicated at the moment, because we have to know how to terraform the Moon and other planets..., however I wish I could live in this utopian MoonLight City.	Proyecto ciudad MoonLight Introdución Hoy en día mucha gente sueña con ir a la luna; de echo, en estos días, un grupo de científicos viajo alrededor de la luna y volvió a nuestro planeta. Este reportaje describe esta pregunta: ¿Cómo sería vivir en la luna?
